Will the container industry be bleak until 2026?

Composed of highlights from the Annual Container Census & Leasing Report 2022/23 and Container Equipment Forecaster 2Q22, published at the end of the second quarter, the results forecast a bleak scenario for the industry up until 2026. The signs began to show in 2021 and have accentuated during the first six months of 2022.

Why are lessors buying more containers this year compared to 2021?

This sharp drop is due to a slower rate of growth in trade, and due to the fact that lessors are exercising more caution about buying new containers against longer term commitments from the ocean carriers and kept their budgets significantly lower this year than they were in 2021.

How does global supply chain congestion affect reefer containers?

As congestion in global supply chains eases vessel productivity levels increases and that results in containers being turned around slightly faster, also meaning less need for new equipment. Also, reefer container was down 22% January - June 2022, compared to the same period the year before. Bouncing back
